

ORGANIZE TO OPPOSE FLU

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED
BY MEDICAL PROFESSION

Forty-seven new cases reported yesterday—figures represent an accumulation.

Following the conference of Richmond physicians on Friday to discuss plans for combating an influenza epidemic if it should develop in Richmond, two committees of physicians to bring about the co-operation of the medical profession and the use of vaccines were announced last night by Dr. J. Garnett Nelson, president of the Richmond Academy of Medicine and Surgery.

Forty-seven new influenza cases were reported yesterday, making a total of 282 cases for the month, of which 211 were reported within the last three days. The recent figures were held due to the efforts of the Health Department to have physicians co-operate with the department in promptly reporting cases, and which represents an accumulation rather than an increase.

Dr. E. C. Levy, in discussing the situation last night, stated that while there is no more than the usual number of influenza cases for any previous year under normal conditions, the people should realize, without being alarmed, that the country faces another epidemic, and that the health authorities are making all preparation to combat the malady should it appear in Richmond.

In making these preparations, the shortage of nurses has been considered, and all women in Richmond who have been graduate nurses, and desire to serve should be necessary, are asked to indicate the nature and extent of their services to Miss M. J. Minor, of the Nurses' Settlement.

Seven physicians were appointed to serve on the committee on the co-operation of the medical profession—Dr. E. C. Levy, chairman; Dr. R. H. Garlin, Dr. R. W. Miller, Dr. J. F. Palmer, Dr. R. H. Smith, Dr. W. T. Oppenheimer.

Five others were named on the committee investigating the use of vaccine—Dr. E. C. Levy, chairman; Dr. E. H. Hopkins, Dr. W. H. Higgins, Dr. J. W. Gordon, Dr. M. L. Anderson.

TWO PULMONARY MOTORS
ARE INSTALLED BY MYERS

Apparatus Will Be Used by Fire Department in Reviving Victims of Gas, Water or Smoke.

Installation of two pulmonary motors as part of the equipment of the fire department for use in reviving persons who have been overcome with smoke, asphyxiation, or electrocution, was announced yesterday by Director of Public Safety Myers.

While the motors have been assigned to the fire department, one of which will be at the service of any person in case of accident, the other will be used in the largest hospitals and can be operated by a child.

It is claimed that persons have been revived by means of the motors within half an hour after being pronounced dead. The motors are identical to those used in the largest hospitals and can be operated by a child.

Later, other motors of this type will be placed in the various police stations, where they will be accessible to the needs of the respective sections of Richmond.

TREATY PARLEY HANGS FIRE

REPUBLICANS TAKE STOCK
AS RESULT OF PROTESTS

Lodge Cancels Bipartisan Conference in Order to Consult With Senate Faction.

[By Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Compromise negotiations in the Senate on the peace treaty, were halted temporarily today while Republican Senators took stock of the situation caused by the protests against further compromise made yesterday to Senator Lodge by Senators Johnson, of California; Borah, of Idaho; and other Republicans.

To give opportunity for the Republican Senators' conference, Senator Lodge cancelled the meeting of the bipartisan conference of Republican and Democratic leaders considering compromise reservations. Another meeting of the consultation committee was called for Monday, however, and meantime informal conferences on both sides were planned.

Numerous consultations between members of all Senate factions were held today, and leaders generally agreed the outlook for an early settlement was unpromising. It was conceded in all quarters that the protests by Senators Johnson and Borah made further negotiations more difficult.

Lodge Talks With Conference.

Senator Lodge conferred today with the other three members of the Republican committee on the peace treaty, and they had prepared an answer to Democratic proposals for composing differences over the reservations to Article X of the League of Nations covenant, and that regarding equality of voting in the league. This answer, it was expected, would be transmitted to Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, and his associates on the Democratic committee Monday.

Although no authoritative statement regarding the nature of the Republican leaders' plan was given, it was intimated the Republicans would agree only to change in language of two major reservations, and would not yield any of the principles involved. Assurances to this effect were given to the Democratic leaders by Senator Johnson and Borah at yesterday's conference with Senators Lodge and Newcomb.

In view of the prospective attitude of the Republican leaders, speculation today in Senate lobbies centered on the question of an outcome of the bipartisan conference. It was believed, however, they would continue for a few days at least until all chance of agreement was precluded.

SOUNDS OUT MILD RESERVATIONISTS.

Besides the conferences of the Republican leaders today, the "mild reservationists" Republicans and also a number of Democrats consulted separately and with each other. The "mild reservationists" were sounded out by Senator Hitchcock and other Democratic leaders, and it was stated, gave assurance of the opposition from Senators Johnson, Borah and their adherents to further compromise blocked conciliation movement, some of the "mild reservationists" were prepared to treat with the Democrats independently in an effort to bring about ratification. The Democratic leaders said they had assurances from the "mild reservationists" if a break developed in the present bipartisan conference, the "mild" group would put forth a program of reservations of their own and seek support from other Republicans and Democrats.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders agreed today the situation was developing where the warfare soon might break out on the Senate floor, despite Democratic hopes that the treaty would not be "made a football" in the Senate until a set of compromise reservations could be agreed upon.

Controversy Crops Out.

The treaty controversy erupted out briefly today in the Senate, Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, an opponent of the treaty, criticized the bipartisan negotiations, declaring they were being conducted in secret by "self-appointed" committees having no authority to act.

"They are not discussing principles," said Mr. Reed, "but are changing in the reservations can be made which will catch some votes."

The "mild reservationist Republican," said Mr. Reed, "insist on yielding only part of our sovereignty, while advocates of unqualified ratification of the treaty wish to yield it all."

"There is another class of old-fashioned, wicked people," continued Mr. Reed, "who would not surrender a single star of the American flag to live under a banner of internationalism."

Senator Reed also commented W. J. Borah for his position against ratification of the treaty without change in Article X of the league and for opposing assumption of mandates by America.
